Enhancing the Engineers of Today, Educating the Engineers of Tomorrow

Society of Women Engineers Region A Conference 2010
University of the Pacific-Stockton CA- February 26-28, 2010

The conference will focus on both professional development and educational outreach, to stimulate practicing engineers and cultivate the next generation of engineers. We will present workshops concentrating on how to strengthen social networks, improve relationships in our increasingly international field, and understand the underlying business and management strategies that drive engineering decisions.

Conference Schedule
The conference will take place February 26th - 28th, 2010. These dates were chosen in an attempt to avoid spring break, finals, and holidays observed by various Region A colleges.

- Friday: Mixer and Activities
- Saturday: Workshops, Career Fair, and Keynote Speaker
- Sunday: Region A Business Meeting

Conference Highlights

Keynote Speaker:
Pamela Eibeck, University of the Pacific

Career Fair
The San Joaquin Valley is centrally located between the Sacramento and the Bay Area. Companies from both of these regions, as well as from across the country and the world, look to engineers from the San Joaquin Valley to fill their voids.

Workshops
Workshops will focus on how to strengthen social networks, improve relationships in our increasingly international field, and understand the underlying business and management strategies that drive engineering decisions. The workshops will be organized into several flexible tracks, which will address all issues presented in the theme of the conference:

- Professional
- Collegiate
- Outreach
- Technical
- Personal Development
